

John Sparling Published in "Construction Today"

June 21, 2017

John Sparling, head of the firm's Construction Litigation group, was published in the May 17, 2017 edition of Construction Today. The article, titled "Accident Scene Investigation 101", appeared as the lead story in the Commercial Section of the May 2017 print issue, and can be accessed here: <http://www.construction-today.com/sections/columns/3086-accident-scene-investigation-101>.

Construction Today is a print and digital publication that provides insight into new and important topics in the national construction industry. The publication reaches nearly 400,000 readers and caters to contractors, engineers, and CEOs of construction companies.

John Sparling is a Partner at Cullen and Dykman, and the head of its Construction Litigation practice. He has been handling complex litigation in the insurance, construction, products liability and mass tort litigation fields for over 20 years. More information about Mr. Sparling, as well as his contact information, can be found here.

Cullen and Dykman has complete working knowledge of the fundamentals of construction law and litigation. We invite you to contact us to learn how Cullen and Dykman can assist you with your legal needs.

Practices

- Construction Litigation

Industries

- Financial Institutions